Greenville Society for Human Resource Management Awarded with Excel Award

Greenville, SC — The Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM) recently awarded the Greenville chapter of SHRM with the prestigious Excel award, in recognition of its accomplishments in 2020. This is the sixth consecutive year that the Greenville chapter has received the award, which is given to state councils and chapters to recognize major accomplishments, strategic activities, and tactical initiatives that elevate the profession of human resources.

“To receive this award, yet again, is an honor, and an illustration of the hard work that our chapter continually puts in to better the human resources field,” said Leanne Fuller, Board President of GSHRM. “Not only does it show our commitment to providing meaningful programs and member services, but it is recognition of the continued growth and development of this chapter and our HR professionals within it.”

The EXCEL Award can be earned at four levels: bronze, silver, gold and platinum, with a prescribed set of requirements and accomplishments that must be met for each level. Industry focuses include serving HR professionals, advancing the HR profession and enhancing the SHRM community as a whole. Greenville SHRM will receive recognition in SHRM publications and at conferences, a logo to display on its website, and information to share with its members about the significance of this award.

About GSHRM

Greenville SHRM (GSHRM) is the area’s premier human resource organization. With over 500 members, the chapter provides a forum for leadership and learning discussions that impact Greenville’s business environment. Our work helps attract and retain world class companies and talent in the Upstate community. GSHRM provides tremendous value to human resource and business professionals through educational opportunities, networking with community leaders and peers, and developing meaningful relationships that aid in professional and personal growth.
